Young learners love to play games and if you choose the right ones, they can have a hugely beneficial impact on their learning. As well as being fun, games can provide learners with necessary language practice, as well as lowering the affective filter (i.e. the anxiety, fear, boredom and other negative emotions that can all impact on learning). Games also foster a positive, relaxed environment ...

2.1.2 Teaching English to Young Learners In order for children to acquire English, they have to experience and hear the language when they are small. In general, it is agreed upon that they learn languages better than adults because children have more time for learning, and do not have any worries or responsibilities. Also, they are better at learning any language when they are exposed to it ...

Young learners of English need explicit instruction on the link between the symbols (letters) in English and the sounds they make. They need to be taught that there is a direct link between the phonemes (sounds) and graphemes (letters) in order to be able to start 'blending' or sounding out simple words, e.g. vowel consonant (VC), followed by consonant vowel consonant (VC). The UK National ...

Children, not to mention children learning English as a foreign language, have no idea what syntax is. Heck, there are plenty of adult native English speakers who have no clue how to define it! It is, however, an important skill to teach young learners, even if it doesn't actually involve teaching the rules of grammar.
